

Community leaders,

I am thrilled to extend my heartfelt congratulations to our ThedaCare President and CEO, Dr. Imran Andrabi, whose unwavering dedication and outstanding contributions have earned him the recognition of being listed among Becker's 60 Health System CEO Influencers.

He is the only health care leader from Wisconsin recognized.

Becker's Healthcare is the go-to source for health care decision-makers and one of the fastest growing media platforms in the industry. The outlet provides information and forums for health care leaders to learn, exchange ideas and further conversations about the most critical issues in American health care today.

According to Becker's, the featured health system CEOs use their considerable influence to improve health care as a whole. They discuss public health issues, share the results of successful initiatives, implement new models of care and more. They often go on to set important precedents within the health care industry.

The CEOs highlighted on this list contribute to important research and discoveries, share their expertise with their networks and set the overall tone for their organizations.

We appreciate Dr. Andrabi's leadership to continue our mission to improve the health and well-being of the communities served. Our organization has thrived under his vision of reinventing health care to create a healthier future for all.

This list is not an endorsement of included leaders or associated organizations, and individuals cannot pay for inclusion on this list. Names are presented in alphabetical order.
